Biographical Note

William Mitchell

Born on Nantucket on December 20, 1791 in the spot where the Methodist Church now stands on Centre Street, William Mitchell was the son of Peleg Mitchell, Sr. and Lydia Mitchell. The family was Quaker. At the age of three, Mitchell began his schooling, taught by teachers at several different schools. Later in his schooling, he worked with the expectations of attending Harvard College which never occurred. He learned the trade of coopering but then became interested in teaching. He began as an assistant teacher and then became principal of the same school. Due to ill health, he left teaching, returning to cooper in his father's soap and oil business.

William married Lydia Coleman on December 10, 1812; they had first met in 1804 when William had gone to the Coleman's house at the request of his father for pumpkin seeds which Captain Coleman had brought back from Patagonia. When first married, William farmed potatoes and corn and fished. Returning to Town, he taught, worked in his father's oil business and coopered. He taught at one of the first public schools on the island but left to open his own school for fifty students on Howard Street in the late 1820s. He left teaching, taking up the position of secretary at the Phenix Insurance Company. He left the position in 1837 when he was offered the position of bank cashier at the Pacific Bank, a job which he kept until he left the island in 1861 and one which housed the family in the apartments at the bank. This is what brought him to sell the house at 1 Vestal Street to his brother, Peleg Mitchell, Jr., in 1837.

Mitchell held many jobs in his lifetime, many at the same time in order to support his family. He was an astronomer and worked for the US Coast Survey. In his biography, he lists his occupations as: cooper, soap boiler, oil candle manufacturer, farmer, schoolmaster, Insurance Broker, Surveyor, Chronometer rater, astronomical observer for the Coast Survey, Justice of the Peace, Executor of Wills and Administrator of Estates, Write of wills, deeds and other instruments, Cashier of a bank, Treasurer of a Savings Bank...He served in the state senate and was on the Board of Overseers and the Harvard College Observatory. More details of his life can be found in the NMMAA.

In 1861, after the death of Lydia Mitchell, William and his daughter Maria moved to Lynn, Massachusetts to be closer to family members. From there, William moved to Vassar College where Maria was professor of astronomy and mathematics and director of the observatory. William Mitchell remained active in astronomy and making his meteorological journals. William Mitchell died at Vassar College Observatory where he was living with his daughter, Maria. He passed away on April 19, 1869 and is buried on Nantucket. William Mitchell and Lydia Coleman Mitchell had ten children; nine of whom lived to adulthood.

The Barney's

Sally Mitchell, the oldest daughter of William and Lydia Mitchell was born January 30, 1816 on Nantucket in a house on Liberty Street where her father, mother and brother, Andrew, lived with William's aunt, Phebe Starbuck. She died on March 25, 1876 on Nantucket and is interred in the Mitchell family plot where William, Lydia, Maria, Andrew and Maria Coleman (sister of Lydia Coleman Mitchell) are buried. On April 4, 1838, Sally married Matthew Barney (1814-1897), a Friend and the son of William and Sarah Barney. Sally and Mathew had two sons – both named William Mitchell Barney. The first child, William Mitchell Barney I, was born in 1839 and died in 1842. William Mitchell Barney II, often referred to as Mitchell, was born in 1846.

Matthew Barney learned the trade of a cooper which he worked at until the 1850s. He then worked in the insurance business and was the treasurer of the Nantucket Institution of Savings and served as a trustee for the Coffin School and the Nantucket Atheneum. Matthew worked with Henry Coffin on a real estate development for the Cliff called Sherborne Heights, 1888. He died at his home on the Cliff in 1897. He had remarried after Sally's death (no children in second marriage) and is buried in the Prospect Hill Cemetery alongside his second wife and her family. Like other Mitchell family members, Matthew loved to write poetry.

C. Neal Barney (1875 – 1949) was born in Lynn, MA and was the son of William Mitchell Barney II and Mary L. Neal and grandson of Sally and Matthew Barney. William Mitchell Barney II and Mary Neal Barney had two other children besides C. Neal Barney. They were Edward M. born in 1871 and Lydia Louise born in 1874 (died 1933). He graduated from Tufts College and was class president. He was the mayor of Lynn, MA from 1906 to 1907. A lawyer, he was counsel for the Worthington Pump and Machinery Corporation of New York City and served as the Maria Mitchell Association's president from 1947 to his death in 1949. C. Neal married Maizie Blaikie and they had one daughter, Virginia.

The Macy's

Anne, the fourth child and third daughter of William and Lydia Mitchell was born on November 8, 1820 in the house at 1 Vestal Street. Anne became a teacher at the Coffin School where she taught languages. She was well-known throughout the island for her ability with foreign languages – she knew seven.

Anne married Alfred Macy on May 2, 1857. Born in 1831, Alfred Macy was a machinist and worked at the Merrimack Normal Institute in New Hampshire in 1850. In 1852 he worked in a private school. He was principal of the South Grammar School on Nantucket and served as the principal of the Coffin School on Nantucket for seven years. In 1861 he was the collector of the port of Nantucket and admitted to the bar. He served on numerous boards, including counselor for the Nantucket Fishing Company. In 1871, he was appointed to the Governor's Council. He died in 1874.

Born in 1859, Frances "Fanny" Mitchell Macy was an artist who painted portraits. She died at a young age. After her death, Anne started a memorial to her and it became the Frances Mitchell Macy Memorial at the Coffin School on Nantucket - a library of various volumes some of which are still owned by the Coffin School Trustees today. Anne Mitchell was the last survivor of her family of three. Fanny passed away in 1889 the same year as her aunt Maria Mitchell. Anne died March 16, 1900.

The F. Mitchell's

Francis Mitchell, born February 19, 1823, was the fifth child and second son of William and Lydia Mitchell. On April 27, 1853 Francis married Ellen Mitchell, daughter of Joseph M. and Sally Mitchell. Francis was the assistant cashier to his father at the Pacific National Bank before moving to Chicago with Ellen and their only child Clifford Mitchell who was born on Nantucket in 1854. Francis was in the produce market in Chicago before the fire there. After the fire, he became a broker and served on the Board of Trade. Francis died on August 3, 1891 in Chicago and is buried on Nantucket. Ellen died at the end of 1891. She was likely the first woman to serve on the school board in Chicago and was active in the Association for the Advancement of Women and the Women's Congresses along with Maria and several of the Mitchell sisters.

Clifford Mitchell, born on Nantucket, graduated from Harvard College in 1875 and became an urologist in Chicago where he died in 1940. Francis, Ellen and Clifford are all buried at Prospect Hill Cemetery.

William Forster Mitchell

Named for the famous English Quaker, William Forster (who had visited Nantucket around 1824), or Forster as he was known by his family, was born August 31, 1825. On February 5, 1846 Forster married Charlotte Coffin Dow, daughter of Mr. Alexander Dow and Mrs. Coffin Dow. Forster apprenticed to his uncle Peleg Mitchell Jr. as a tinsmith. He went into the American South during the Civil War to work for the Freedmen's Bureau and was part of the founding of Howard College in Washington, DC where he taught tinsmithing and started the college's industrial department. He also served as the superintendent of Haverford College.

On November 2, 1891, Forster and Ellen moved into a boarding house next to Gardner Chase's home across from Matthew Barney. This was arranged by Henry Mitchell who also had a house – Thorn-Hill – on the Cliff. Forster died on Nantucket on June 1892 on the Cliff either in Henry's or Matthew Barney's house or in the boarding house across from Matthew Barney's home on the Cliff.

Forster and Charlotte Mitchell had one daughter, Anne Maria Mitchell or Annie Maria as she was known, who was born in 1847. She married Alfred R. Payne (1847-1906) in 1872. They had four children many of whom were also instrumental in the founding of the Maria Mitchell Association. Anne Maria Mitchell Payne died in 1929.

The Kendall's

Phebe Mitchell was born on February 23, 1828. Phebe, an artist, taught drawing and painting on Main Street. She was close to her older sister Maria and Maria left the bulk of her papers to Phebe when she died in 1889. Phebe published these papers in 1896 as Maria Mitchell: Life, Letters and Journals.

Phebe married Joshua Kendall September 14, 1854. Kendall taught at a theological seminary in Meadville, PA. The family returned to Massachusetts, settling in Cambridgeport, MA. Phebe was the first woman to serve on Cambridge's school board and she also played a role in the Association for the Advancement of Women, serving on the committee for dress reform and then chairing the committee. Joshua was an avid poet. Phebe died on June 4, 1907.

William Mitchell Kendall, their only child, was born in 1856. He traveled with his parents and aunt Maria in Europe in 1873, traveling with his aunt alone in Russia. He became an architect and was a partner with McKim, Mean and White. He was one of the architects for the Boston Public Library, one of the bridges over the Potomac River in Washington, DC, and the monument that surrounds Plimoth Rock. He and his wife had no children. When he died in 1941, he left a large portion of his estate to the Maria Mitchell Association – many family furnishings and other pieces.

Henry Mitchell

Henry Mitchell was born on September 16, 1830 along with a twin sister, Eliza Mitchell. Eliza died at the age of three. At 16, he went into government service as a heliotrope on Gumstock Mountain, NH. He was a hydrographer for the US Coast Survey for which he was offered the superintendence in 1889 by President Harrison. During the Civil War, Henry Mitchell made charts for entering harbors for Union vessels and was assisted by his oldest brother Andrew Mitchell. He received a degree from Harvard in 1867. He was on the Boston Commission in 1867 and went abroad to speak with engineers about commerce and management for the United States. In 1869, he became professor of Physical Hydrography at MIT. He surveyed the Mississippi River, was appointed to the Board of Engineers by President Grant in 1874, and was on the advisory council in Portland Maine Harbor in 1874. He also served on the Advisory Board of the state harbor commission of Norfolk and Portsmouth VA (1873) and was appointed to a similar position in Rhode Island in 1877. In 1879, President Hayes appointed him to the Mississippi River Board. He served on the American Society of Civil Engineers in 1880, the Advisory Board of the Philadelphia Harbor in 1880, and was a member of the National Academy of Science. He was a member of the Geologic Society in 1886, the Philosophical Society in Washington, DC and in 1890, an examiner of coins at the US Mint. Mitchell died in New York City at age 72 on December 1, 1902 nine months after the death of his third wife.

Henry Mitchell married: Mary E. Dawes on September 8, 1854. After her death, he married Margaret Hayward in 1873. They had one daughter, Mary "Polly" Hayward born in 1874. Margaret died in 1875 and Henry married her sister Mary Hayward in 1876 who raised Polly as her own. Mary died in March 1902. Polly married John Havemeyer in 1899, also Altz Kromm. She died in 1956. Polly had four children: Helen, John Francis, Alice and Henry Mitchell (founder of Mitchell's Book Corner on Nantucket).

Andrew Coleman Mitchell

Andrew, the oldest of the Mitchell children, was born on January 30, 1814, in the house of his father's aunt, Phebe Starbuck, on Liberty Street where his parents were then living. The family story is that he ran off to sea when he was 16 years old and decided he did not like life on a whaler. A farmer, Andrew went to the California Gold rush on the Aurora and ran a boat on the Sacramento River. During the Civil War, he served in the US Navy and he assisted his youngest brother, Henry, with studying tides and currents in New York Harbor for entering Union vessels. There is a letter in the Henry Mitchell Papers written by Andrew when he was serving in the Navy. He married Ann Elizabeth Swain on May 21, 1843. They had no children. Andrew died in 1871.

Eliza Katherine Mitchell Dame

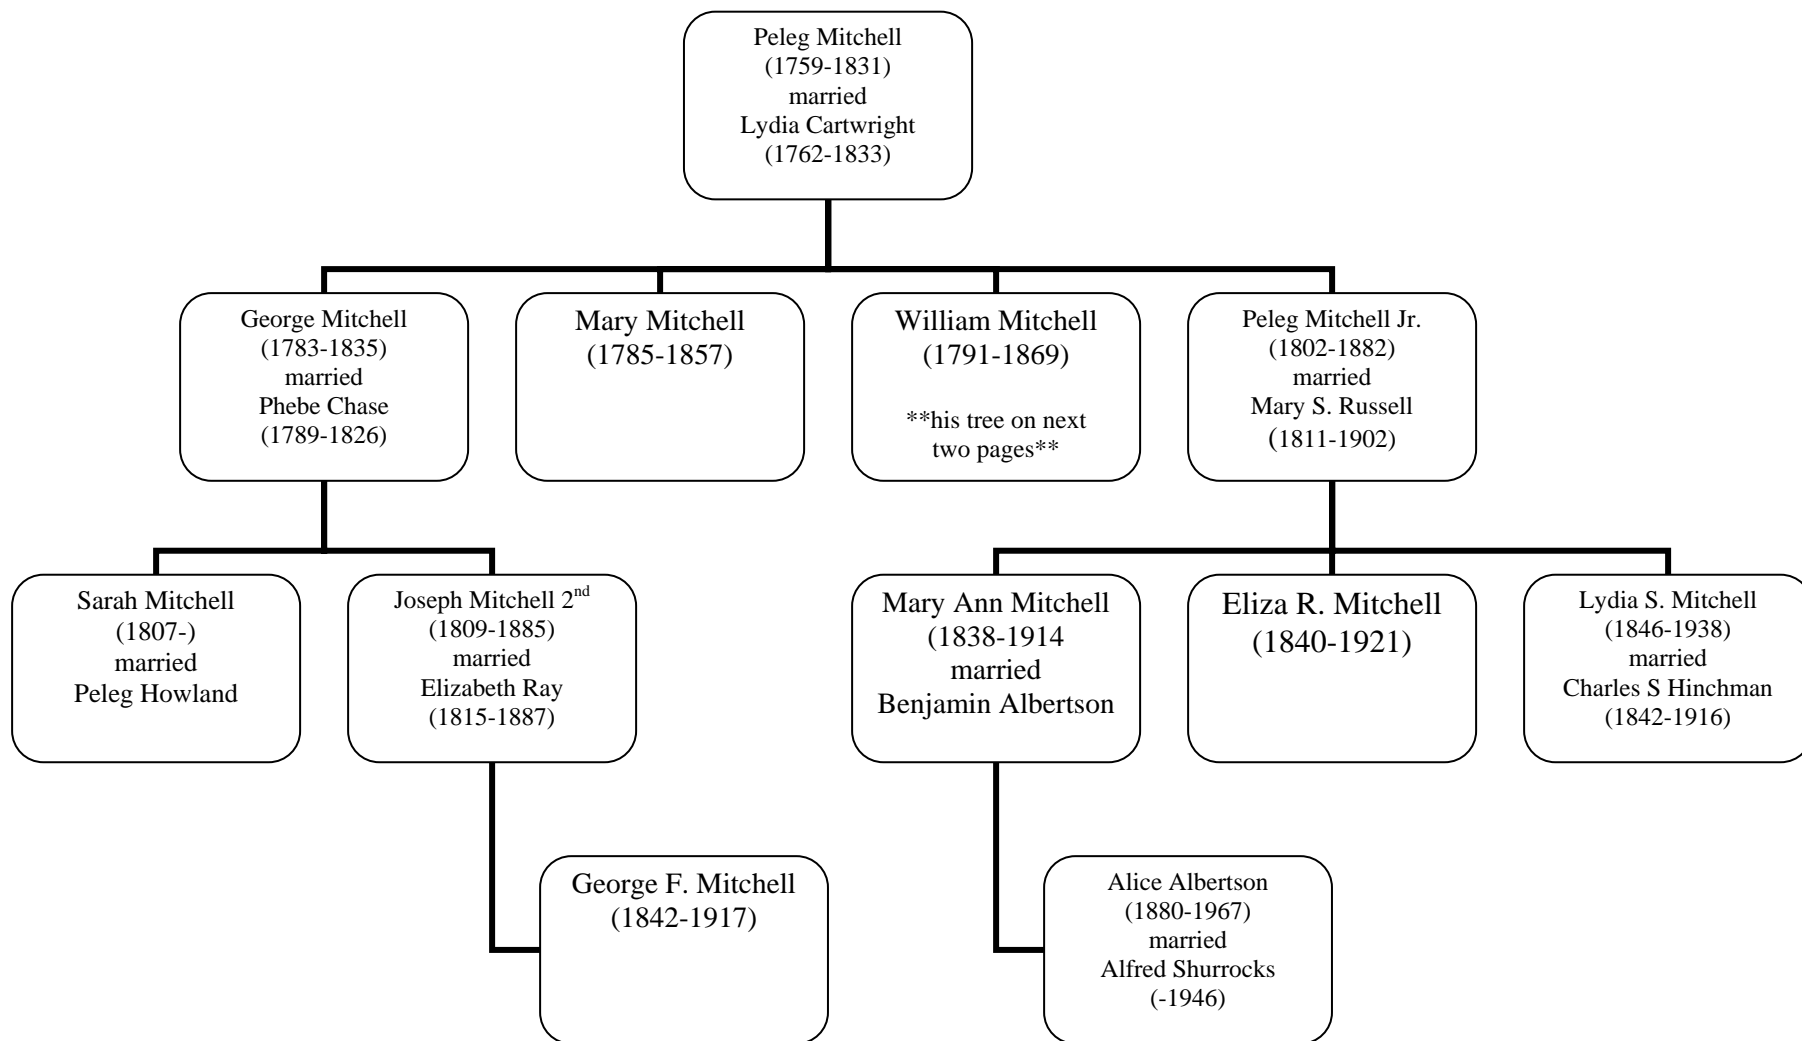

Kate was born on June 8, 1833. The youngest of the Mitchell's children, she died on February 10, 1907. She married Owen Dame on July 9, 1857. Owen Dame was a high school principal in Lynn, MA. They had eight children. Maria Mitchell was also close to Kate.

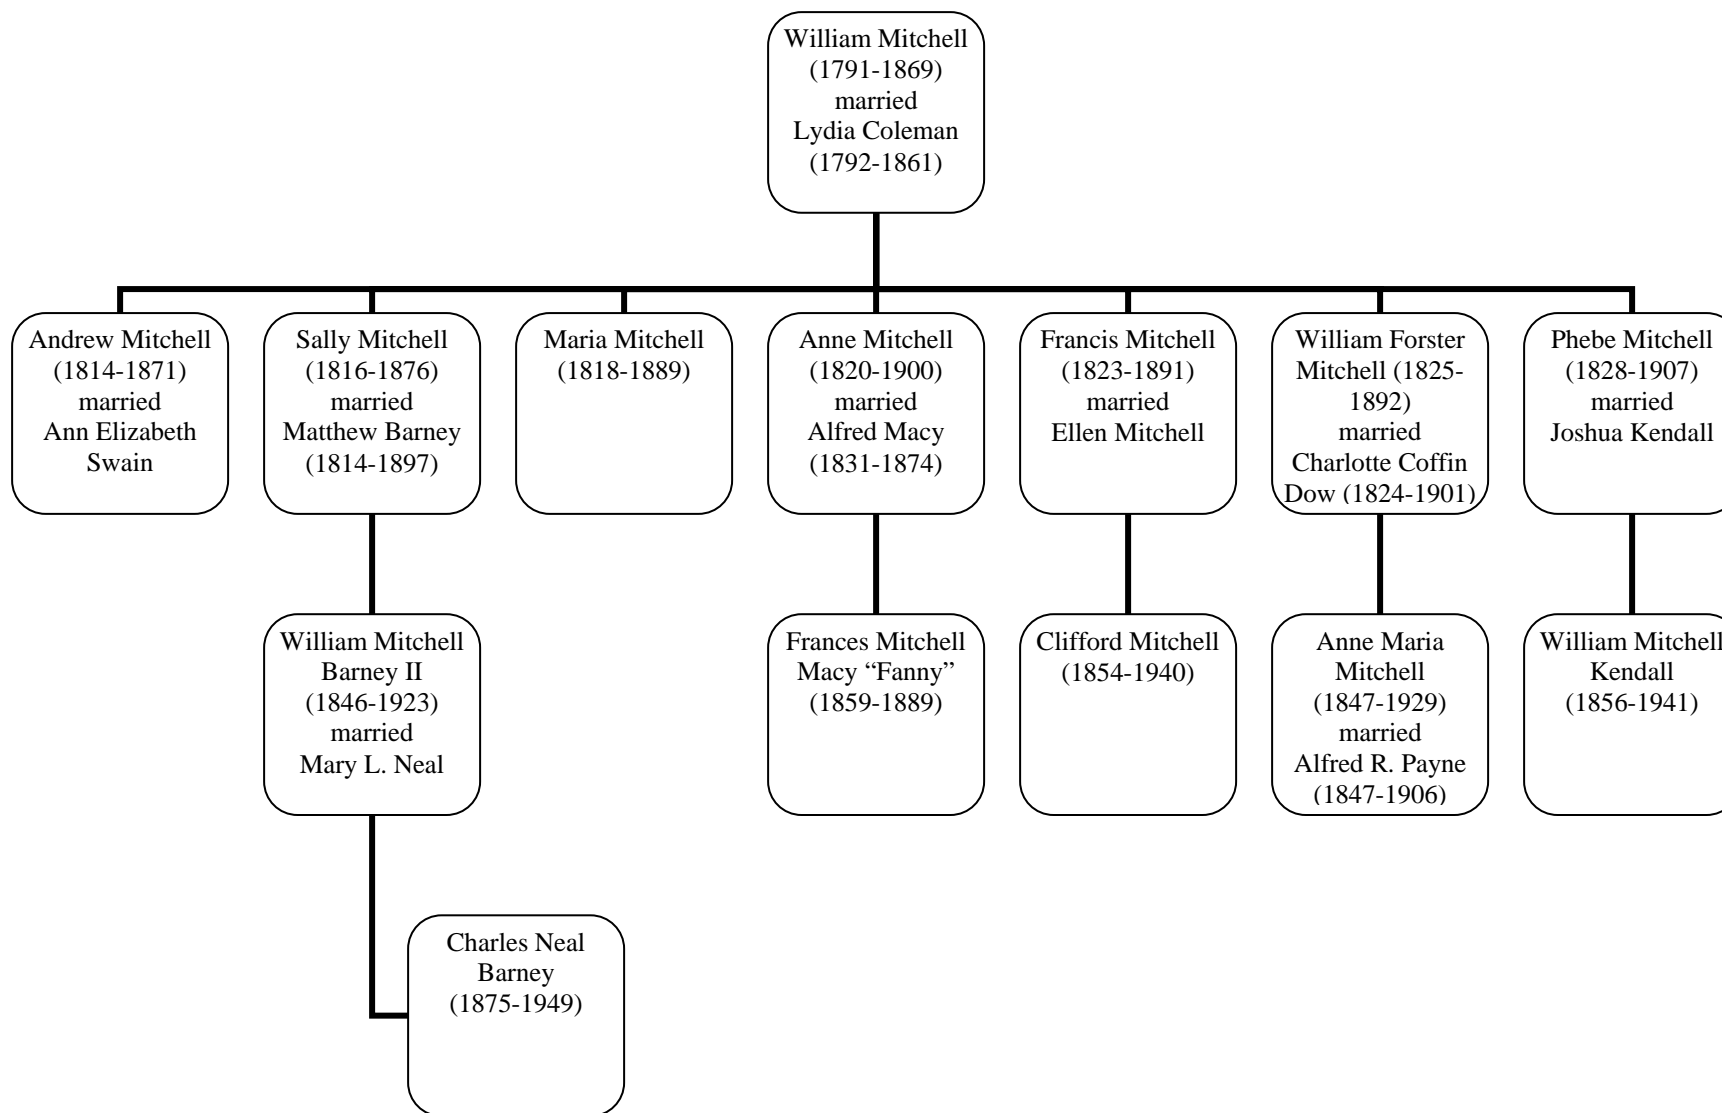

Peleg Mitchell Jr.

Peleg Jr., the youngest child of Peleg Mitchell Sr. and Lydia Cartwright Mitchell, was born in 1802. He was a tinsmith and a recorder for the Friends. He also served as Clerk of the Wilburite Friends on Nantucket from 1863 to 1883. He purchased 1 Vestal Street from his brother, William Mitchell, in 1838. He had a tinsmith shop on Main Street that was destroyed in the Great Fire of 1846. After the fire, he likely practiced out of 1 Vestal Street. Peleg Jr. married Mary Whippey (b. 1802). She died in 1836; they had no children. He married Mary Russell and they had three daughters: Mary Ann, Eliza R, and Lydia S. These were the women who were instrumental in the funding of the Maria Mitchell Association. Their mother, Mary Russell, was the last Mitchell family member to live in the house at 1 Vestal Street. Soon after her death, the newly formed Association purchased the house from her estate. Peleg Mitchell Jr. died in 1882. His widow, Mary Russell Mitchell, died in 1902 (b. 1811). She was the last Quaker on Nantucket. 1 Vestal Street's front sitting room was used for Wilburite Quaker meetings.
